SUBJECT: Employee Awareness of "New Series" Regulations [REDACTED]

25X1

1. The revision of our headquarters regulations into a "new series" is nearing completion; excepting the replacement of HK 10-6, Secrecy Agreements, those outdated regulations that have been rewritten are in the final stages of coordination and processing required before publication. Revision, when fully accomplished, will represent radical innovation of the format and substance of the security regulations in print before updating commenced. Some regulations have been rescinded or transferred to other series, while others have been consolidated or expanded. In some instances, new regulations have been created to address specific security functions; e.g. [REDACTED] reinvestigation Program.

2. There is some evidence that Office personnel have not kept themselves informed of changes in Headquarters regulations. Papers citing regulations or extracting quotes from their contents on occasion have referred to "old series" regulations that have been replaced in the "new series." This suggests that our employees either are not maintaining a current set of regulations or do not check to determine whether or not a regulation is operative. Whatever the reason, the situation is unfortunate and potentially embarrassing. The "new series" regulations incorporate policy that often is not consistent with that reflected in the "old series." Obviously, it is not appropriate for an Office of Security employee to reference, cite, or quote from an invalid policy statement. [REDACTED]

3. It is suggested that measures be taken to ensure that all Headquarters regulations, particularly our own, available for reference are current. Further, it is suggested that "new series" regulations circulated for information be flagged as material that warrants close attention. [REDACTED] revision [redacted] regulations. While these 25X1 issuances were revised late in the updating exercise, our draft proposals are all in coordination and two [redacted] 25X1 have been printed in revised form. The revised field regulations, published and unpublished, also contain significant policy 25X1 changes with which our employees should be familiar. [redacted]
